General provisions concerning guidance and supervision

Section 24 (1261/2005) Guidance and supervision

The National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs is responsible for the national guidance and supervision of health care professionals. In the territory of a province the activities of health care professionals are guided and supervised by the competent State Provincial Office. The National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs, under the Ministry of Social Affairs and Health, guides and supervises the operations of the State Provincial Offices with a view to harmonising their operational principles, procedures and decision-making practices in the guidance and supervision of health care professionals.

The Authority for Medicolegal Affairs deals with matters related to the guidance and supervision of health care professionals in particular as far it is question of:

- 1) matters that are important as a matter of principle or far-reaching;
- 2) a suspicion of medical malpractice that has caused the death of a person or a difficult permanent disability to a person;
- 3) matters that are related to investigation of the cause of death carried out by a medicolegal expert;
- 4) matters that may require precautionary or disciplinary measures; or
- 5) matters that the relevant State Provincial Office is disqualified to handle.

Provisions on the detailed division of labour in the guidance and supervision between the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs and the State Provincial Offices may be laid down by Government Decree, as necessary.

The supervisory authority referred to in paragraph 1 or 2 does not consider a complaint related to the activity of a health care professional that concerns a matter that took place more than five years ago, unless there are particular grounds for considering the complaint.

For the supervision of health care professionals, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs has established a Board for the Supervision of Health Care Professionals, the composition and tasks of which are prescribed by Government decree.

Section 24 a (1030/2000) The central register of health care professionals

The National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs shall keep a central register of health care professionals in order to manage the supervision tasks laid down in the Act on the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs (1074/1992). Apart from what is provided in this Act, the provisions of the Personal Data File Act (523/1999) shall apply to the keeping of the register.

The register shall contain the following information on health care professionals:

- 1) name, personal identification code, home address, right to practice a profession and restrictions on it or its withdrawal, authorisation to practise a profession or its cancellation, right to use an occupational title of a health care professional and its prohibition, and information on the training on which the right or authorisation to practice a profession or to use a protected title is based; (690/2005)
- 2) any decision of the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs and a State Provincial Office indicating that erroneousness, neglect or reprehensibility has been perceived in the professional activity of a professional, as well as information on any reprimands, fines or sentences of imprisonment related to the practice of the profession, dismissal or suspending from office; and
- 3) information on the right to practise as medical or dental specialist and on the training it is based on.

The information referred to in paragraph 2 (1) will be removed from the register in ten years after the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs has received information about the death of a registered person. The information referred to in paragraph 2 (2) will be removed after ten years have passed from the issuing of the decision or equivalent, unless the Personal File Act (1010/1989) provides for a more longer period for removing the entry. Information on punishment shall also be deleted if the punishability of the act on which the punishment was based has been rescinded.

In addition, in the central register is entered, if necessary, information about the workplace of a health care professional and about reserving a health care professional for preparedness for conditions of emergency in accordance with the Readiness Act (1080/1991), as prescribed in more detail by Decree.

Section 24 b (1030/2000) Giving information from the central register of health care professionals

The provisions on confidentiality notwithstanding, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs must give the information referred to in section 24 a (2) to a State Provincial Office for managing the supervision tasks referred to in the law, as well as to authorities of EEA states for granting a right or authorisation to practise a health care profession and for managing tasks related to supervision. The National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs must, notwithstanding the provisions on confidentiality, give the information referred to in section 24 a (4) to the Ministry of Social Affairs and Health for managing the tasks referred to in the Readiness Act.

Apart from what is provided in the Act on the Openness of Government Activities (621/1999), the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may, without prejudice to the provisions on confidentiality, give authorities and health care units information about the criminal sanctions referred to in section 24 (2) with a view to assessing the suitability of a job seeker.

Apart from what is provided in the Act on the Openness of Government Activities, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may submit from the central register information, in the form of copies or in electronic form, on names and addresses of persons entered into the register, as well as information on their right and authorisation to practice a profession and on their training, with a view to sending information related to the profession of registered persons. As distinct from what is provided in the said Act, the information referred to in section 24 a (2) 2 on decisions of the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs and a State Provincial Office and on reprimands obtained in practising a profession and suspending from office may only be submitted for scientific research and compilation of statistics, and for investigations carried out by authorities, or to an authority for managing tasks prescribed in the law or for activities related to health care to health care units, pharmacies and communities operating in the field of health care, unless it is question of information on a single registered person.

There are separate provisions on the fees charged for submitting information. Giving the information referred to in paragraph 1 shall be free of charge. In addition, the Ministry of Social Affairs and Health shall, upon request, have access to the information service based on the central register of health care professionals of the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs, except for the part that the National Authority obtains from an outside service-provider.

Precautionary measures

Section 25 (1030/2000) Investigation into the appropriateness of professional activities

If there is good reason to presume that a health care professional, owing to illness, substance abuse, reduced functional capacity or for equivalent reason, is no longer capable of practising his or her profession, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may order the health care professional to undergo a medical examination or examinations at a hospital (examination of capacity for professional activity and state of health).

If there is good reason to presume that the professional skills or knowledge of a health care professional are inadequate, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may order the health care professional to sit an examination, to demonstrate skills or to undergo an investigation in order to get his or her professional skills or knowledge assessed (investigation of professional skills). The costs of an investigation of professional skills are compensated out of State funds. (923/2003)

Paragraphs 3 and 4 were repealed by Act No. 1261/2005.

If a health care professional refuses to allow the examination referred to in paragraphs 1 to 2, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may forbid the licensed professional to practise his or her profession or revoke the authorisation to practise a profession granted to a professional or forbid a professional with a protected title to use the occupational title of a health care professional as laid down by Decree. (1261/2005)

Section 26 (1030/2000) Sanctions for misconduct

If the matter does not give cause to undertake a measure referred to in paragraph 1 (a) to (e) or in section 33, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs or the State Provincial Office can give the health care professional an admonition or draw his or her attention to appropriate professional practice. The admonition issued or the drawing of attention by the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs or the State Provincial Office referred to in this section may not be appealed. (1261/2005)

Section 27 Criminal offence committed in the course of professional activity

If a health care professional has been sentenced to imprisonment for a criminal offence that he or she has committed while carrying on professional activity, and the decision of the court has gained legal force, and if the circumstances relating to the offence show that he or she is not worthy of the confidence he or she should enjoy, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may withdraw the right to practise a profession of a licensed professional for a fixed period or, under aggravating circumstances, permanently, or cancel the authorisation of an authorised professional for a fixed period or, under aggravating circumstances, permanently, or forbid a professional with a protected occupational title to use the occupational title of a health care professional as provided by Decree for a fixed period or, under aggravating circumstances, permanently.

If a health care professional holding a state or municipal office or an office in a joint municipal board has been ordered to be suspended from office or dismissed from office because of a criminal offence, the provisions in paragraph 1 above shall apply correspondingly.

The court of justice shall send copies of the record and decision concerning the case referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 to the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs without delay.

Before a court decision under which a health care professional has been sentenced to imprisonment or dismissed or suspended from office has become legally valid, the National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may forbid a licensed professional from practising his or her profession or cancel the authorisation of an authorised professional or forbid a professional with a protected occupational title to use the occupational title of a health care professional as provided by Decree.

Section 28 (1030/2000) Incapacity for practising a profession

Section 31 Withdrawal of a right or authorisation to practise a profession upon personal request of a health care professional

The National Authority for Medicolegal Affairs may, upon personal request of a health care professional, limit his or her right to practise a profession as a licensed professional or withdraw it, or cancel the authorisation of an authorised professional.

Section 32 Restoration of the right or authorisation to practise a profession or of the right to use an occupational title

When the right to practise as a health care professional has been withdrawn for a fixed period or until further notice or has been limited or denied, when the authorisation to practise professional activity has been cancelled or when use of a health care professional occupational title as prescribed by Decree has been forbidden, the health care professional may apply for restoration of the right to practise a profession or nullification of any limitation on professional activity, restoration of authorisation to practise a profession, or restoration of right to use the occupational title of a health care professional as prescribed by Decree from the National Board of Medicolegal Affairs once the reason for the withdrawal or limitation of the right, for cancellation of authorisation or for prohibition of the use of occupational title has expired.

Explanation of the expiration of the reason referred to in paragraph 1 shall be appended to the application.

Disciplinary and penal provisions

Section 33 Written caution

If a health care professional has in the course of his or her professional activity violated the law or the provisions or regulations issued on the basis of it or is otherwise guilty of error or neglect in his or her duty, the error or neglect not being of a kind requiring prosecution in a court of justice, the National Board of Medicolegal Affairs may issue a written caution to the person concerned.
